

Some Tips to help you get started with LikeList:

- Before you get your first visitors to your site, you should add at least enough quotes for them to like that will bring their friends in too. You can also add some pictures and videos.
- Most of your visitors are probably going to be teenagers & young adults, so you should adjust your quotes to what they'd press like to. Of course you can try anything else, and see what works for you.
- You can find enough interesting quotes on a particular subject with a simple search on google; For example: "love quotes" or "teen quotes" Give the links of some entries to some your friends, or like them yourself or share them to your profile. You can also post them to other pages to get a stronger start.
- You can add custom entries with HTML through the admin panel. This can be whatever you like a link to another site, just a quote that you'd like to emphasize, anything.
- Find some other ways to promote this around...it won't be long until your site gets flooded with traffic and your pages with fans!
- You can make more websites and add links between them, to exchange traffic between them and make them grow and help each other. If you want I can completely interconnect them for you, only for $15 for two website+$5 for every extra site. If you are interested, drop an email at likelist@part3.org.
